GUIDED BY WHĀNAU VOICE

- You can use your own processes and models for service development
- You may opt to deliver services alongside service development
- All providers will catch up with MSD quarterly (minimum)

Develop your plan

Whānau voice and alignment

Understand the needs of men, Tāne, and Whānau to inform service development

Consider:

- Collate existing whānau voice
- Collect new whānau voice
- Generate key insights
- Review your alignment to the Framework of Te Huringa ō Te Ao

Generate ideas for change

Generate ideas for service development based on whānau voice insights

Consider:

- How might you respond to whānau insights?
- What might you design, tweak or test?
- Be creative, go wide, then refine
- Consider greatest impact and feasibility to implement

Test and refine

Test idea(s) with men, Tāne and Whānau. Refine ideas based on feedback

Consider:

- Test in low cost ways
- Include diverse perspectives and experiences
- How you will measure success?
- Start to develop or refine your Service Concept

contract*

Implementation

Implement your service concept into service delivery

Consider:

- An implementation road map eg. staffing, funding, partnerships, timing, organisational changes required, communications
- Live prototyping - ongoing testing
- MSD will work with providers to develop new reporting measures

Embed & measure

Embed your service concept and measure its effectiveness for tāne and whānau

Consider:

- What does embedding look like within your organisation and community?
- Define and implement success measurement and evaluation techniques

Continuous improvement

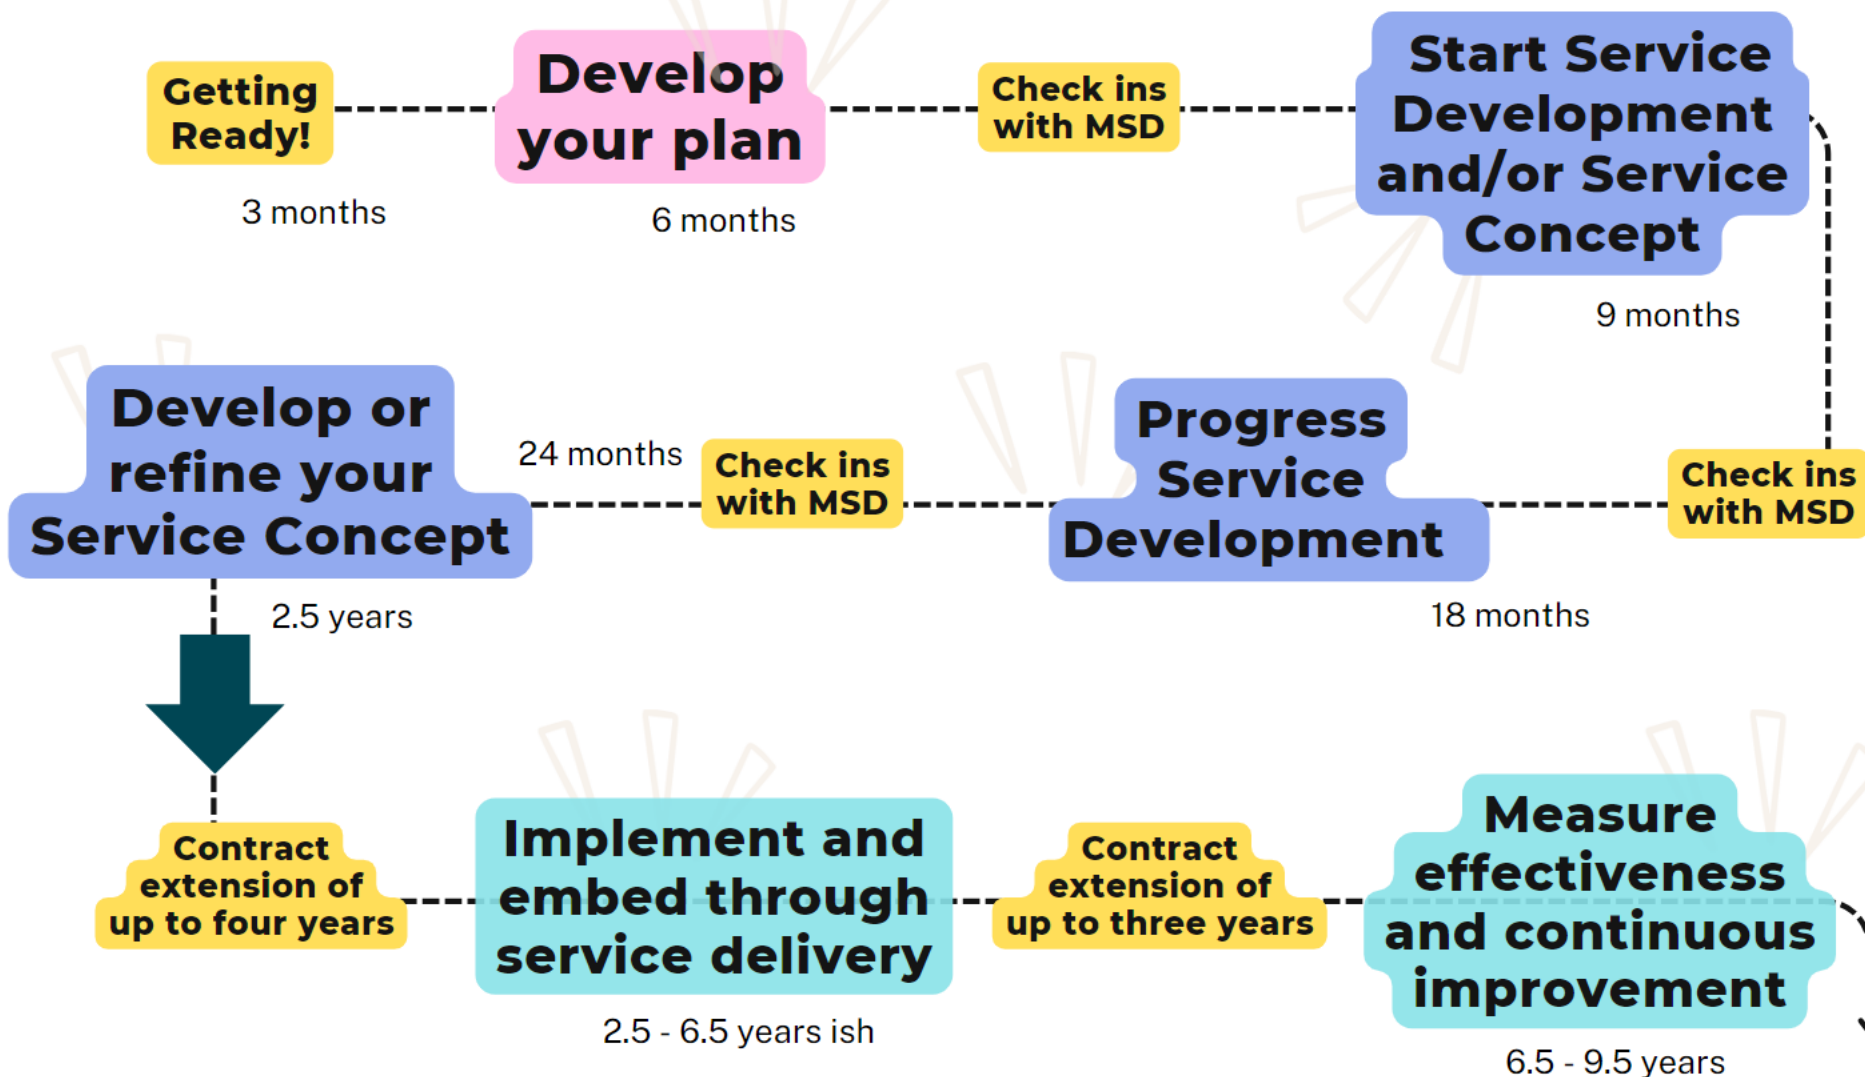

Adapting your service over time to respond to whānau voice

Consider:

- Proactively seeking whānau voice, evidence, and maintaining feedback loops
- What are you changing based on new learnings?
- How can you evidence this through reporting and monitoring?
